HOOVER ASSAILS PUBLIC WORKS PLAN

NEW OPTIMISM FOR BUSINESS IN TENNESSEE

Mississippi and Arkansas
Also Have Greater Confidence in Future

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1932 by Post Pub. Co.
Memphis, Tenn.—Mingling here with bankers in joint session from three states, Mississippi, Tennessee and Arkansas, a bird-eye view of economic conditions in the central south is presented, and on the whole it is a cheerful picture.

Arkansas, land of drought a year ago, has come back and is struggling upward with all the confidence given by good crops at low production cost.

Mississippi has a new executive, Governor Conner, a Harvard graduate and student of government who has balanced the budget with a sales tax. The Mississippi viewpoint is that the worst is over and that the states can look forward to an era of gradual but certain recovery.

Tennessee, especially in this section, is feeling the favorable effects of an agricultural status which, while not profitable, is at least self-sustaining. The last two years have seen adjustments to new conditions in agriculture. Cotton is selling at a low price but it is affording a living to many thousands of people.

Farming in this part of the world has absorbed many families which threatened to become a public charge. A relief committee here recently found farms for 1,500 families and disposed of the unemployment in short order. The community chest drive was a success.

South Faces Facts
The south, which saw a painful reconstruction period in the last century, has a way of facing facts and adjusting itself to them without whimpering.

Compared with the east, this gateway to three states is not downcast, but presents a metropolis thriving with life. Opening of the Ford assembly plants is giving employment to labor, and cars are beginning to sell as replacements. The feeling here is that readjustment has come with the more favorable outlook for agriculture.

There is no escaping the impression that the bankers reflect among themselves a confidence they did not have a year ago. They speak in commendation of the work of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, not only for loans granted but for the added strength given the credit structure by readiness to lend. The bankers insist they are lending money to those who have a legitimate claim for credit accommodation. They resent the implication that they are not cooperating. With nervous depositors watching them, they could not theretofore lend freely.

The new measures in the last five months have given stimulus to the credit flow, but the bankers say frankly they cannot take risks or chances and that cautious banking is the rule of the hour. Some of them told the writer it would be a long time before the country banks would buy long term bonds for secondary reserve.

Others were hopeful congress would relieve the country of the uncertainty it feels today with respect to tax legislation and new borrowing of government securities to pay the cost of the proposed reconstruction projects—whether they are to be self-liquidating or additional public works.

Curtis Indictment Handed To Judge

Secrecy Guards Economy Bill Before Presentation

SUGGEST SLASH OF ONE-THIRD IN YOUNG PLAN DEBT PAYMENTS

Paris—(AP)—Victor Henry Berenger, negotiator of the recent Franco-American debt arrangement, suggested in an article published here today that the Young plan annuities be reduced one-third to meet a 30 per cent fall in business.

If the payments then should still prove too heavy for Germany, M. Berenger recommended a moratorium on all payments except $40,000,000 reichsmarks (about $110,000,000).

He said the debt agreements linked the amount the United States will receive to the amount Germany pays France and that the success of the coming Lausanne conference is subordinate to a settlement between the United States and Europe.

BEGIN INQUIRY IN SHIP CRASH

Damaged Steamship Arrives at Boston With 29 Rescued Men Aboard

Boston—(AP)—The steamship City of Chattanooga arrived at Boston today with scraped and twisted plates extending 20 feet back from its bow, and a broken forward flagstaff, telling a tale of a collision at sea which sank the freighter Greelan and killed four of its crew.

Of the 32 members of the Greelan's crew, three who were seriously injured had been removed to Vineyard Haven hospital yesterday and 29 disembarked at Boston this morning. They were whisked away in taxicabs to the offices of the Merchants and Miners Transportation company, owners of the Greelan.

Passengers and others aboard the Chattanooga, arriving in Boston a day late as a result of the collision, told of the crash in the early morning darkness and fog yesterday off Block Island. They said the impact was not great and that most of the rescued members of the freighter's crew clambered directly aboard the City of Chattanooga.

READ KIDNAP CHARGE IN HANDS OF POLICE

Oakland, Calif.—(AP)—Police today took over one phase of the conflict between Alfred C. Read, Jr., broker, and his attractive young wife, Mrs. Marian V. Read—a kidnapping charge sworn to by the wife against the husband.

Mrs. Read, who had already sued for divorce and started a $100,000 alienation action against Claire Windsor, actress, named three persons besides the husband in the kidnapping complaint. They were Stewart Trombauer of Hollywood, a business associate of Read, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Trower of Oakland.

She declared Read, assisted by Trombauer, forced her to accompany him into the mountains near Placerville, Calif., and attempted to "sales talk" her into dropping the divorce and alienation suits. The two men are being held in Placerville for Oakland authorities.

HONOR MEMORY OF GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS

Luetzen, Germany—(AP)—Leading Protestant churchmen gathered here today on a 300-year-old battlefield to honor the memory of the Swedish King Gustavus Adolphus, champion of the Reformation who fell while fighting the forces of the Catholic Emperor Ferdinand II, Nov. 8, 1632.

President Hermann Kapler of the German Evangelical Church union paid tribute to the Swedish monarch as an example of what can be done by a God-fearing man. Bishop S. E. Aurelius of Linköping responded in behalf of the Swedish churchmen.

HUNT SHIP REPORTED AFIRE ON LAKE ERIE

Windsor, Ont.—(AP)—Search was in progress today for a ship reported afire last night in Lake Erie, about two miles off Colchester point. A telephone message to provincial police at Amherstburg said the air saw flames leap high in the air as if there had been an explosion.

When officers went to investigate the flames were not visible. High seas and a heavy inshore gale made it impossible to launch a boat at that time.

ADDED ACTION IS EXPECTED FROM COURT

Judge Doesn't Confirm Indictment but Prosecutor Tells of Trial

Flemington, N. J.—(AP)—An indictment, presumed to be against John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk hoaxer in the Lindbergh case, was handed today to Justice Thomas Trenchard who ordered it delivered to quarter sessions court for further proceedings.

J. Chester Skillman, foreman of the grand jury which considered the Curtis case earlier this week, handed three indictments to Justice Trenchard, who announced that one of them dealt with Julia Winterstein on a charge of murder. The other two, he said, would be sent to quarter sessions.

The grand jury only considered three cases at the sitting at which evidence was presented in the Curtis case, and so it seemed certain that one of the two indictments not made public today was against the confessed hoaxer.

Silent About Others
"I have nothing to say about the other two indictments," Justice Trenchard announced from the supreme court bench after making the one public and saying what action he was taking on the others.

The grand jury heard the evidence on the Curtis case Thursday and after it had heard several witnesses and seen Curtis' confession reports were current that an indictment had been voted unanimously on the first ballot. But the chance is a still one in view of the certainty that the highly controversial unemployment relief is to be considered and much more work with the not will be required to adjust differences on all the financial bills.

G. O. P. IN ILLINOIS FOR DRY LAW REPEAL

Wants to End Search and Seizure Law, Modify Volstead Act

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—The Republican party of Illinois, as represented by its state convention, has gone "wet."

A plank which called for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, of the state search and seizure act, and modification of the Volstead law to permit sale and manufacture of beer and light wines, was nailed to the party's platform by the convention yesterday.

The platform adopted was the speech of former Gov. Len Small, hitherto a "dry" who, with former Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, the party's nominee for governor, who in previous campaigns had the support of the Anti-Saloon league, declared the voters of Illinois had plainly shown their "wet" sentiments in a referendum in 1920, and that the legalizing of light wines and beer, with a federal tax of 25 cents a gallon, would yield $500,000,000 annually. The result, he said, would be an immediate increase in the price of farm products.

No "drys" raised their voices in protest and Small's address was adopted as the platform by unanimous action.

President Hoover was not mentioned by name in the platform, but the national and state administrations were formally endorsed, and United States Senator Otis F. Glenn, in an address praised the president for his "courage and unselfish labor in a time of greatest crisis."

Eleven uninstructed delegates-at-large were named to the party's national convention in Chicago next month.

Week's Weather

Chicago—(AP)—Weather outlook for the week beginning May 30:
"For the region of the Great Lakes—Generally fair and cool Monday followed by showers about middle of week and probably a close, warmer middle of week.
For the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys and the northern and central great plains—Showers at beginning of week, especially in south portions; remainder of week more or less unsettled with further showers no marked departures from seasonal temperatures likely."

POST-CRESCENT MOVES TO NEW HOME

The Appleton Post-Crescent today is moving its machinery and office equipment to its new home at the northwest corner of N. Superior and W. Washington streets where it will be ready for trans-shipment of business Monday morning. In order to make it possible to move all the machinery and equipment in the few hours remaining before Monday, today's paper was sent to press at noon.

Monday's paper will be issued from the new plant and will be printed at noon so that employees can be given a half-holiday on Memorial day.

Packer Falls Six Stories To His Death

Edward F. Swift, Sr.,
Plunges from Window of Chicago Apartment

Chicago—(AP)—Edward F. Swift, Sr., chairman of Swift and Company, plunged to death today from the window of his sixth story apartment at 1550 N. State-st. He was 64 years old and had been in ill health for several weeks.

The veteran packer had fallen from his window to the alley at the rear of the N. State-st. apartment. Death was instant.

He was the son of the pioneer Chicagoan, Gustavus Franklin Swift, founder of the packing house that was to become the world's largest.

While other great Chicago families had relinquished their hold on the industries that made them great, the Swifts had clung to active leadership in their international packing business.

At his death, Edward F. Swift was chairman of the Chicago house and president of Compania Swift International, which does an extensive business in South America.

Louis Swift, brother of Edward, is president of Swift and Company, and other brothers, Charles, George, and Harold, held high offices in Swift's and affiliated interests.

The news of the tragedy stunned his associates in the stock yards where he had been known since childhood.

BANK BANDITS USE WOMAN AS SHIELD

Victim Critically Wounded—
One of Three Robbers Is Shot Dead

Morris, Okla.—(AP)—Wounded by gunfire as bank bandits used her as a shield as they fled, Miss Claire Agas, 26-year-old bookkeeper, was reported in a serious condition at an Oklahoma hospital today.

She was abducted after she sounded a burglar alarm yesterday when two men robbed the First State bank here of $500. The alarm brought Marshal L. S. Thompson and others. They fired, killing a bandit who remained at the wheel of the car and apparently was undying another. The robbers returned the fire. It was not determined whose shots struck the girl.

Once out of town, the two robbers threw Miss Agas from the car, and abandoned it and their dead companion. They were still sought today.

Jack Ary, Drumright police chief, identified the slain man as Roscoe Ernest, wanted for robbery.

Bonus Army Head

Here is W. W. Waters of Portland, Ore., "field marshal" of the "bonus army" of 400 World War veterans recruited at Portland and traveling by freight train and truck to Washington, D. C., to demand full and immediate payment of the bonus. After running into difficulties with railroad officials at Caseyville, Ill., the veterans were given transportation across Indiana in national guard trucks and promised the same conveyance across Ohio.

TOKIO FLIGHT STILL DELAYED

Necessary South Wind for Takeoff Dies Down as Browne Sleeps

Seattle—(AP)—While Nat C. Browne slept, the south wind he wanted to help him start a projected non-stop, 5,000-mile flight to Tokyo, came and went away.

The New York aviator expressed disappointment at being awakened to a windless morning and settled down to await another breeze to help lift his heavily laden monoplane into the air. Weather observers said it might come along by 10 a. m. today.

TOKIO HINTED GOAL

Roosevelt Field, N. Y.—(AP)—Harold Bromley arrived here this morning in his oil burning speed plane and announced he expected to take off non-stop for Los Angeles this evening.

Although he denied earlier, on leaving Camden, N. J., where he spent the night on the way from Dallas, Texas, that he planned a Pacific flight, he said here his ship was equipped to carry enough fuel "to go to Tokyo." He said the would proceed from Los Angeles to Seattle, where business men have offered a $30,000 prize for the first flight to Tokyo. The prize offer expires June 1.

BANK LEGISLATION IS APPROVED BY HOUSE

Washington—(AP)—Legislation of tremendous importance to banks, depositors, setting up a billion dollar insurance pool to protect bank funds, was on its way to the senate today approved by the house.

Under its provisions depositors in any federal reserve or national bank, and in as many state banks as joined the pool, would be assured of receiving their money within a short time after a failure.

Strenuous opposition to the measure was raised by Representative McFadden of Pennsylvania, ranking Republican on the banking committee, who held it the worst blow ever administered to the federal reserve system. But his protest was unavailing and late yesterday many Republicans joined Democrats in passing the bill without a record vote.

Sponsored by Chairman Steagall of the banking committee, the measure calls for a billion dollar fund raised by assessments on the banks and contributions from the treasury and the surplus of the federal reserve banks, plus loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation if necessary.

BONUS ARMY MOVES TOWARD W. VIRGINIA

Zanesville, Ohio—(AP)—The "on-to-Washington" bonus army of World War veterans moved through eastern Ohio today toward West Virginia after a night in the Zanesville fair grounds.

Within the next few days the "army" of about 300 ex-soldiers hopes to reach the Capitol to plead for payment of their bonus certificates. Many of the men came all the way from the Pacific coast.

As it did yesterday, Ohio again provided the veterans with 52 state-owned trucks to aid their journey. Gov. George White declared it was a "patriotic duty" to do so.

The trucks brought the army here last night after an all-day ride from the Indiana line. National guard officers who served as an escort, police, highway department employees and committees of Ohio veterans provided the travelers with food and tobacco.

CALLS IT MOST GIGANTIC PORK BILL ON RECORD

Hoover Sees Threat to Stability of Government in Proposal

Washington—(AP)—An angry and disgusted denunciation by President Hoover of Speaker Garner's huge public works program, widened enormously today the political rift in congress over unemployment relief.

The most gigantic pork barrel ever proposed—an unexampled raid on the public treasury—were the words Mr. Hoover flung at Garner's list of 3,500 postoffice, road and waterway building projects, carried in his $2,100,000,000 relief bill.

The president spoke out thus before a large group of newspapermen late yesterday. His lips were drawn to a hard, straight line and his face was pale with intensity of feeling as he heaped up condemnation on the plan, as one wrecking balanced budget hopes and threatening the stability of the government.

He told how many of these building plans had been discredited by congress itself because of "useless extravagance" involved, and said many others had been authorized only for a distant future when natural growth of communities would justify them. Not 20 per cent, he said, could be brought to the stage of construction in a year, and only 100,000 men could then be put to work.

"It is apparently expected," he said, "that the cupidity of these towns and sections will demand that their congressmen and senators vote for this bill or threaten to penalize them if they fail to join in this squandering of money."

"I just do not believe that such lack of intelligence or cupidity exists amongst the people of our United States. If that shall prove true then this is not the United States that had the intelligence to frame the constitution of this republic, which fought the war of the Revolution, or the Civil war, or the World war, that it might be forged into the greatest nation in the world."

Speaker Garner received word of Mr. Hoover's attack with equanimity, and neither he nor his Democratic associates showed any intention of deviating a particle from the program planned for the bill—three days of committee hearings next week, and house passage right after. Garner said he was promised strong Republican support also.

Senator Reed (R., Pa.) followed the president in denouncing Garner, charging him with willingness to destroy the government's credit "in endeavoring to promote his personal prospects."

The original list of building projects in the Garner plan is now undergoing extensive overhauling to correct many inaccuracies, frankly admitted and attributed to haste in shaping the program.

BRODERICK FREED OF NEGLECT CHARGE

New York Banking Chief
Cheered as Jury Brings in Verdict

New York—(AP)—A crowd that sat up late to hear the verdict broke into cheers when Joseph A. Broderick, state banking superintendent, was acquitted at 2.35 a. m. (E. S. T.) today of willful neglect of duty in failing to close the Bank of United States sooner than he did.

The jury had been out 15 hours. Flushed with excitement, Broderick accepted congratulations silently, apparently unwilling to trust his voice. The verdict was a climax to an eight weeks' trial during which Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who appointed Broderick, testified in his defense. Max D. Steuer, noted attorney who acted as special prosecutor in the case, was not present when the jury reported.

Three other indictments are pending against Broderick but it was not known whether they will be tried. These charged neglect of duty in not making examinations of the institution often enough, neglect of duty in failing to inform the bank directors of an adverse report on its condition, and conspiracy.

Broderick was first brought to trial last February but a mistrial was accused of making misleading statements. During the second trial Broderick told of his efforts to save the $200,000,000 institution, which had 400,000 depositors when it closed in 1930.

Seabury Plans New Attack On Mayor Walker's Testimony

PREPARING TO RESUME QUIZ NEXT TUESDAY

Will Attempt to Link Mayor's Affairs With R. T. Sherwood's

New York—(AP)—Investigator Samuel Seabury waited his ax today and prepared to hack again at the prose of Mayor James J. Walker's explanation of events which Seabury calls "exceedingly suspicious."

After a fiery duel in which the mayor defended his political honor, Seabury turned yesterday to an analysis of bank and brokerage accounts. When the Hotstadter legislative committee resumes next Tuesday its investigation into charges of corruption in New York, Seabury will try to link the mayor's financial affairs closer to Russell T. Sherwood, former clerk who handled nearly a million dollars in five and a half years and is now missing.

The mayor has denied that Sherwood was his fiscal agent. He said he merely did little personal services for him. From time to time, he said, he gave Sherwood money to pay bills incurred by Mrs. Walker or himself, and it was possible Sherwood had deposited this in his own accounts before disbursing it.

Seabury, however, put Accountant James T. Ellis on the stand to testify that Sherwood could not have paid Walker bills to the extent of $21,500 without using part of the proceeds of brokerage accounts the mayor has denied having any part in.

This followed testimony by Park Commissioner Walter R. Gierick, friend of the mayor, contradicting Walker's testimony that he "never bought or caused to be bought" any stock in the Interstate Trust Co. Edward Stanton, former secretary to the mayor, demanded, in a tumultuous scene, the right to testify, saying he could explain the apparent discrepancy. He was told he would be called Tuesday.

Earlier Paul Block, newspaper publisher, testified that he was friendly toward Walker, that he led him to start a joint brokerage account from which the mayor received $24,000 profit without investing anything.

When he departed from his office yesterday, the mayor said he would rest over the weekend, leaving next Tuesday to attend a postponed convention of mayors in Detroit, Wednesday.

RESIGNATION OF PASTOR ACCEPTED

The Rev. Daniel C. Jones, Neenah, Will Move to This City

The resignation of the Rev. Daniel C. Jones, D. D., as pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Neenah, was accepted by the Winnebago presbytery in a Pro Re Nata meeting at the Presbyterian church in this city Friday afternoon. Dr. Jones, who has given up his pastorate because of ill health, will move to Appleton where he will live until he regains his health.

The following commendation of Mr. Jones was made by the presbytery:

"Dr. Jones leaves the church in a harmonious and prosperous condition, and the discontinuance of his wise leadership will be a great loss to the church.

"In addition to manfully carrying out the heavy burden of the responsibilities of the important pastorate in the Neenah church, Dr. Jones has been a faithful presbyter and he has taken an active part in the activities of the presbytery and synod as a whole. In the presbytery and synod he has held the chairmanship of some of the most important committees. Best of all, he has worked in cordial relations with the pastors and he has been like a brother to many.

"In the judgment of the members of the presbytery assembled here today Dr. Jones has earned and well deserves the respect and the gratitude of the members of the presbytery and synod who were never absent from his arduous labor in which he has so long been engaged, and it is the sincere desire and earnest prayer of the members of the presbytery that he will recover his strength and health and that he will be privileged in the mercy of God to render much more valuable service to the kingdom of the Blessed Redeemer."

BOARD DISCUSSES COOPERATIVE PLAN

Methods whereby organized Appleton merchants will contact organized merchants of nearby cities were discussed at a meeting of the chamber of commerce board of directors at Hotel Northern Friday afternoon. The suggestion that Appleton merchants get acquainted with retailers from Neenah, Menasha, Kaukauna and other nearby places was made by George Wettengel, chamber president. Reports of division and committee heads also were discussed.

Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press
Hollywood—(CPA)—Who said Hollywood was not a centre of culture and whatnot? Go want! They're getting up an expedition right in the heart of the cinema capital to go dig up ruins and decipher inscriptions in Yucatan.

There's a big splash and ruin man, Lawrence T. K. Griswold by name, staying at a hotel in Hollywood and gathering about him the nucleus of the "Yucatan adventure." And the thing which may surprise the rest of the world is that more Hollywoodians want to join the expedition, paying their own way, too, than could possibly be taken along.

CHURCH FACES BATTLE OVER TWO QUESTIONS

Organic Union, Fundamentalist - Modernist Big Issues at Denver

Denver—(P)—An undercurrent of controversy appeared at the 144th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. today as commissioners attacked problems of organic union with other churches, the fundamentalist-modernist question and problems of social and industrial relations.

The modernist - fundamentalist clash—if one develops—probably will revolve around the question of support and participation in the work of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Some members of the church are known to oppose membership in the council, because of their claims it is too liberal and two overtures are before the assembly asking the church to sever all connection with the council.

One item in the budget as presented by J. Willson Smith, of Philadelphia, was $14,500 for participation in the affairs of the federal council. The Rev. H. McAllister Griffiths of the Philadelphia fundamentalist group raised objections. He urged the assembly to withhold action until it considered the two pending overtures.

Griffiths' motion to strike out the item appeared to have considerable support on a viva voce vote but was overwhelmingly defeated on a standing vote which was not recorded.

The budget for 1932 and 1933 was set at $10,000,000. It calls for salary reductions for church workers, effective April 1, 1932. Salaries up to $3,000 will be allowed an exemption of $1,200, the remainder to be cut 10 per cent. All salaries above $3,000 will be reduced a straight 10 per cent.

Other Budget Items
Of the budget, women's interests and the board of national missions will receive $1,375,000 each. The remaining $7,250,000 was allotted as follows: Board of national missions, $3,059,500; board of foreign missions, $2,370,750; board of Christian education, $1,239,750; board of pensions (retirement), $507,000; American Bible association, $55,000; Federal Council of Churches, $15,000.

A committee of organic union with the United Presbyterian Church of North America reported two harmonious meetings with representatives of the United Presbyterians which resulted in a plan of union. Points of differences to be cleared before a final report is made in 1933 include the book of discipline, the directory of worship and negotiations between the pension boards of the two churches.

Reports made yesterday urged efforts at union with "members of our own ecclesiastical family," which includes the United Presbyterian Church of North America, the Presbyterian Church in the United States and the Reformed church. It was pointed out, too, "we regard the Presbyterian and Methodist churches so closely akin in spirit and purpose that they should be recognized as cooperating bodies."

STUDENT STUDIES BOOZE SITUATION TO WRITE THESIS

Madison—(AP)—A student at the University of Wisconsin is endeavoring to determine why people drink intoxicating beverages by writing out a questionnaire. He will use the results in writing his thesis.

Some of the questions the student is asking are:
Do you drink alcoholic beverages before coming to the university?
Do you drink alcoholic beverages now?
Do you drink as much in your home town as you do in Madison?
Do you favor continuance of the prohibition amendment as it is at present, legalization of light wines and beer, repeal of the 18th amendment, or some other form of modification?
What alcoholic beverages do you prefer—beer, wine, gin or whiskey?
Estimate your average monthly expenditures for alcoholic beverages.
How often do you partake of alcoholic drinks? Check one of the following: every day, three times a week, every weekend, occasional weekend, special occasions only, very infrequently.

PHOTOGRAPHERS AT VALLEY GATHERING

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Harwood and Miss Florence Harwood of the Harwood studio and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Froehlich of the Froehlich studio attended the monthly meeting of the Fox River Valley Photographers' association at the Redlaw hotel in Fond du Lac Friday evening.

Harry Lyman of Oshkosh spoke on the new code and ordinance now in force at Oshkosh, which classifies all coupon and ticket agents as peddlers and taxes them accordingly. As a result of this new regulation, the house agent nuisance has been largely wiped out in Oshkosh, Mr. Lyman said.

ASK CITY SCOUTS TO TAKE PART IN PARADE

Boy scouts of Appleton troops have been asked to participate in the Memorial day parade at 8:30 Monday morning. Scouts are requested to meet at the intersection of Durkee-st and E. College-ave at 8 o'clock in the morning. They must appear in full dress uniform. Mr. Clark stated.

Sponsors Bill

State Senator Emerson L. Richards (above) of Atlantic County, N. J., sponsored a bill passed by the New Jersey Senate providing a $25,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

Do Bit For Public, Says Dr. Wriston

"Your education is not worth a penny if it does not compel you to go and labor in the public interest," Mr. H. M. Wriston told Lawrence college students in the last convocation of the school year Friday morning at the chapel.

"If we fail in this crisis, we'll probably drift into war," he declared. "If we fail in this crisis, it is possible that revolution may result. We are in the midst of a crisis today that is as deep as the crisis of the American revolution, and it behooves each one of you to broaden your education objectives, and to take your place in the public interest."

Dr. Wriston attributed the lack of competent leaders at the present time to the fact that during the last few generations the appeal and the romance of business has attracted the attention of the really capable men away from public affairs. The practice cannot go on long if we are to escape a catastrophe he said.

Politicians are inefficient, and are not forced to stick to their tasks because of the lack of a vigorous public opinion, he declared. The political leaders of the world have so badly managed three great world questions during the last 15 years, and are doing so now, that private business has been dislocated.

There are the questions of the preservation of peace and disarmament, the inter-allied war debts and reparations, and the tariff, three reasons, according to Dr. Wriston, why the United States and the world is facing the crisis today.

"It is a great problem to maintain morale while in retreat," Dr. Wriston stated, "and American business is in retreat at the present time. On the whole, the American business man is making a sorry showing."

Dr. Wriston pointed to Washington as a really educated man, as a man who could live a calm life amid political and economic storms worse than those we are facing today. Washington did not have much schooling, but he learned what he needed at the time when he needed it, which is really the essence of a true education, according to Dr. Wriston.

PLAN SERVICE FOR PATRIOTIC GROUPS

Fly Fishing For Trout, Bass Requires Practice

By BEET CLAFLIN
Fly fishing for trout or bass is a method not universally followed by anglers, yet properly done by one who has mastered the art it is by far the most gratifying way of taking these fish. It takes years of study and practice for the ordinary person to learn the correct equipment and then how to use that equipment to be successful.

There are many anglers who profess to be fly fishermen. And they are, in a limited way. But it is seldom that one is met with in this country who really knows the intricacies of the art sufficiently well to style himself an expert fly fisherman. Recently, in one of my articles, I stated that, in using wet flies the leader should float, whereas, in using dry flies the leader should sink.

That is correct, yet I have been informed that several local anglers were "amused" at my blunder. For that reason, and with a desire to help them in the proper use of artificial flies I am writing this article.

To one who has never become interested in fly fishing such matters may appear trifling. But let me say they are most important. The trout, in particular, is a very wise and wary fish. A dressed leader floating on the surface with a dry fly will again tell him that something is wrong, and he will not strike. Make no mistake about that. When he does hit it is because he is fooled into thinking that the artificial fly you have shown him is a natural insect upon which he feeds.

On the contrary, a clean leader, that is, one which has not been dressed for floating, that sinks below the surface attached to a wet fly will again tell him that something is amiss. But if it floats on the surface, as it should, while the wet fly sinks, he sees no connection between the leader and the fly, and will strike, because he has been fooled into thinking that it is either a minnow, nymph, creeper or some other form of his natural food. He never, however, hits it because he thinks it is a fly, for a fly never swims under the surface.

The above, of course, refers to quiet water. In fast, white rapids, such attention to details may safely be omitted. Also, in bass fishing, with a dry fly it is perhaps best to float your leader, but never in trout fishing.

Inexperienced fly fishermen often say that a half dozen flies of different patterns are enough for anyone to use. I can only answer that by saying the angler's chances for a good catch are better if he carries many different kinds, in fact, one to suit about every possible condition. My own personal kit contains over 30 different patterns, both of local and foreign make. They are not all used on every trip, but from this rather large variety the right one can be selected for any condition.

the Post Building, now offered for Rent

The entire first floor (with basement) of the Post Building, vacated Saturday, May 28, by the Appleton Post-Crescent, is offered for rent with immediate occupancy. In addition, a suite of private offices and the large space formerly used by our editorial department, all on the second floor are available.

Here is an ideal site for businesses of a retail, wholesale or jobbing nature. There is plenty of space — more than 10,000 square feet on the first floor alone. The building is located IN the shopping district, just one half block from College Avenue, at 123 S. Appleton Street.

The Post Building is easily adaptable to the types of businesses mentioned above. Partitions and present room arrangements can quickly be changed. The owners, moreover, will make reasonable alterations without extra charge to the tenants.

The building is sturdily constructed with solid brick exterior and steel and frame interior. All floors are of maple, all windows are protected with Chamberlain weatherstripping and the entire building is safeguarded by an automatic sprinkler system. Here is one of the best insurance risks in Appleton—a building that earns an exceptionally low insurance rate.

Since it was first built, the building has been kept in an excellent state of repair. Depreciation, as a result, has been held to a medium. The heating system is modern—a Kewaunee boiler, fired by a large industrial-type Hardinge oil burner. A separate hot water unit is in operation the year around.

In addition to the business space available on the first floor of the Post Building, the storage space in the basement and the office space on the second floor, a three-car garage on the west end of the property and a parking space to the south, large enough for fifteen cars, are also ready for use.

Here is a property that suggests timely action. Arrange now to see it.

THE CASE OF MAYOR WALKER
Perhaps for even centuries to come the name of William M. Tweed, political boss who robbed New York City out of millions sixty years ago, will remain synonymous with municipal graft. But it may be best to bear in mind that Tweed died in confinement, broken in health and fortune and without a friend to bring him a ham sandwich to alter his coarse prison fare.
Tweed's system was as rough as cobble stones. His dishonesty was honest in its lack of pretensions. He sold influence openly, publicly, as a merchant sells his wares.
Times have changed.
The evidence produced against Mayor Walker, brilliant, lightning quick with his tongue, popular with the masses of the people, reveals conditions inconsistent with a dependable grade of public service or the granite integrity and uprightness that must ornament a ruler's chair.
No evidence of bribery in its coarse sense has been produced. But the smooth variety of bribery is even more harmful than the coarse. As yet there is no evidence even of the smooth variety. But there are a great many suspicious circumstances.
First of all we find that many men wanted to make the mayor wealthy. Roses were constantly thrown in his pathway. Opportunity was ceaselessly knocking at his door.
The procedure was about like this: "I am about to buy Cosden Oil which is due for a big rise in the market. Some of my friends are coming in and I thought I would take a thousand shares for you, Mr. Mayor." To which the mayor would reply about like this: "That's certainly fine of you and I hope we make some money."
One such conversation netted the mayor a profit of $26,000 paid in bonds. Another brought him nearly $300,000 over a period of several years. Apparently the mayor acknowledged the receipt of these profits in his income tax returns, but his testimony that he kept a safe in his house and deposited in it large sums of cash has the appearance of an attempt to hide something. Only foolish people carry large sums of money at home or on their person, unless they fear that the deposit entries at the bank may rise up some day to plague them. When men use unusual means of secrecy there are often unusual reasons why they want the facts kept covered.
The darkest evidence lies in the fact that one Sherwood who acted in a relatively minor capacity for the mayor at an annual salary of $3,500 made bank deposits of over $700,000 of which nearly half a million was in cash. Sherwood has disappeared and the mayor denies any improper relation with him and all knowledge of his dealings.
It is possible that the mayor is guilty of no wrongdoing. It is possible that men have taken steps to effect a favoritism with this public official without his realizing their purpose. There are bare possibilities but not much more than that. The mayor would have been so thoroughly lacking in intelligence as to be unfit to hold any office did he not realize full well that those who were attempting to make him wealthy were probably at the same time trying to put him in their debt, attempting to create a condition where they could influence or dictate his public acts.
It remains a badge of shame for a man to make a personal fortune, however indirectly, out of a public position and all the ingenuity of ingenious men and all the slick and velvety words in an oily vocabulary will never be able to devise a plan to accomplish this result compatible with honor and the public interest.
Bribery is a rough word. It has many shades of meaning and approach. Is there any difference in fact—as there certainly is no difference in result to the people—between him who takes money upon an express trade for his official action and him who permits the creation of conditions, however indefinitely, or indirectly, that accomplish the same result?

ATLANTIC FLYING STILL A STUNT
The first crossings of the present Atlantic flying season do not offer encouragement to commercial aviation. The flights of Reichers and Mrs. Putnam give proof of the hazards still to be encountered from storms and the failure of mechanical equipment.
It was a lucky day for Reichers when, with damaged wing and nearly empty tank, he landed alongside the ship of that old friend of distressed mariners, Captain George Fried. For ten hours before landing in Ireland Mrs. Putnam navigated with defective instruments and faced the danger of fire from a broken exhaust pipe. Neither flyer reached the goal set, Paris.
The successful flight of the giant flying boat DO-X from Newfoundland to Spain, via the Azores, produced nothing but relief in the public's mind that its landings were "happy."
Though airplanes have gained in power and speed since Colonel Lindbergh's historic flight five years ago, no one has duplicated his feat. Commercial trans-Atlantic flying in heavier than air machines still appears many years away. The element of luck still remains the most important ingredient of a successful crossing.

A NATIONAL PROTEST
The wave of protest now sweeping the country at the failure of congress to reduce governmental expenditures in any degree commensurate with the present emergency, will receive additional impetus at a national meeting to be held in Chicago on June 2 and 3, just prior to the national conventions.
This meeting, sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce, is for the purpose of consolidating and making more emphatic the protests previously made by various groups without results in congress, and of giving warning, en masse, that business expects a reduction in governmental expenditures.
Invitations to participate have been sent out to business organizations throughout the country, and the response has been favorable and emphatic almost without exception.
Mr. George W. Rosseter, president of the Chicago Association, in outlining the purpose of this meeting, says: "Suggestions have come to us from all over the United States for such a national meeting of America's business leaders for the one purpose of serving definite and final notice on congress and governmental bodies—state, county and municipal—that unless tax demands are reduced immediately business must crash, with resultant increases in unemployment, destitution and general unrest."
Considering the fact that, should congress provide the savings in expenditures now in sight, the national government would still be spending next year as much as it did in the boom year of 1929, the need is apparent for some powerful influence to bring congress to its senses.
This meeting in Chicago is a business move and its promoters mean business. There will be no possible chance for the national conventions to escape knowledge as to the state of public opinion upon the issue of governmental costs and taxation.

Competitive Bids
Editor Post-Crescent—An ordinance underway in the city of Appleton permitting the city to do construction and repair work without the necessity of obtaining competitive bids is dangerous and eventually tends to demoralize our citizens.
It is contrary to the great basic law of our country.
It encourages waste and extravagance and destroys economy.
It has a tendency to set up political machines.
In many instances when construction work is done by the city without the competitive contract system, no one will assume the responsibility of the final outcome and cost of the project, material may be estimated, cost of labor more or less guessed at. The superintendent or engineer is hampered in performing his duties on the job. There is ever present the danger that he will be criticized for expressing his candid opinion and conviction of any defects or inferior work and eventually loose his position for so doing, which would not be the case when dealing with a contractor on the job. Upon completion of the work the actual cost is rarely known in the taxpayer who are eventually doomed to pay the bill.
Public office holders are elected or receive their appointments to carry out and protect the best interests of the public in a truly representative way.
By permitting the city to do construction work as outlined by the ordinance, it destroys the competition upon which the city has prospered. It increases taxes and, last, but not least, it places tremendous power in the hands of politicians to perpetuate their position by the employment of a vast army of voters.
How does your alderman stand on the question?

GERMAN DRIVE BEGINS
On May 28, 1918, the German offensive in the Chemin des Dames continued with tremendous force, and defending French forces were again hurled back by sheer weight of numbers.
The German gain for the day averaged almost six miles. A wedge was driven into the French lines at Fismes, and commanders of allied forces at the front appealed for immediate reinforcements.
German forces hurled at the French on this front were estimated at more than 500,000, almost triple the strength of their opposition.
A German division which had broken through crossed the Vesle river and stubbornly resisted efforts of fresh French forces to dislodge it.
Meanwhile, American regulars thrilled the world with their brief but brilliant feat in storming the heavily fortified town of Cantigny. More than 200 German prisoners were taken. Two fierce counterattacks were beaten off with heavy loss to the Germans.
Additional American divisions were being rushed to the front to replace tired French veterans.

Personal Health Talks
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

A CASE OF WALL PAPER POISONING
A girl aged 7 years died of some mysterious illness in England recently. The county analyst found 2.65 mg. of arsenic in her body. That is somewhere in the neighborhood of a third of a grain, if I have not forgotten the metric measure. A third of a grain of arsenic is a whale of a dose for even a big strong man. A fairly safe medicinal dose of arsenic is one-hundredth of a grain.
In the sitting room of the home where the girl had lived the analyst found that arsenic was being given off in gaseous form from the wall paper, which was affected by mold.
Now I want all my mentors and critics to note well that the arsenic in this instance entered the body in the form of a gas, by inhalation. It was not absorbed thru the skin. Nothing ever is absorbed thru the skin if the skin is not punctured, blistered, scratched or otherwise broken. This is true, no matter whether it be a case of shoe dye poisoning, nitroglycerin, K. N. T., dynamite, dour, mercury, lead, ethyl lead, wood alcohol, benzol, and despite the arbitrary inferences of small time coroner's physicians and old-time medical authorities, I might include Professor Kahleberg and his boric acid trick in the general rule, only I'm still a wee bit wary of this man—his students all over the country seem to worship the man, so I am not yet ready to go to the mat with him, but anyway he is the only person of scientific standing I defer to in his controversy over the ability of the skin to absorb things.
Samples of the wall paper in the sitting room where the girl had lived showed the presence of 8.3 parts of arsenic per million. Where the mold grew there were only 2.3 parts; in the plaster there were 91 parts.
Spores of the mold attach themselves to the damp paper, grow vigorously, and generate a gaseous form of arsenic. That's how wall paper poisoning happens.
Arsenic is an ingredient in many wall papers, in the ink or color, especially in green paper.
Other members of the girl's family were found to have traces of arsenic in their blood, but not enough to cause any serious trouble. Just why the little girl absorbed and retained so much of it the report of the case does not make clear.
Pathologist of Cardiff infirmary states that probably the flour paste used for putting on the wall paper served as a medium for the growth of the mold, which liberated the arsenic as a gas.
The coroner's verdict of death from dysentery, with arsenical poisoning as a contributory cause.
Well, arsenic poisoning, when acute, produces characteristic dysentery and cholera-like symptoms.
Mild chronic arsenic poisoning is much more common than people generally know. It occurs in various occupations where arsenic is handled in one form or another, and it occurs from exposure to arsenic in domestic life. I am not going to describe the symptoms of mild chronic arsenic poisoning. But I may suggest a harmless remedy. That is a daily dose of sodium hyposulfite, say 20 grains, in a half glassful of water, for eight successive days in each month.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Seventeen Cats
Neighbors keep no less than 17 or 18 cats. Most or all of the cats have some disease which keeps them constantly sneezing, coughing, with a film on their eyes and bunches on their faces and throats, yellow pus masses. These people are members of a sect and they do not believe disease occurs and they will have no treatment. A veterinary physician who saw these cats said he believes they all have tuberculosis. What are the dangers, if any, to human beings? (Mrs. W. H. W.)
Answer—If it is tuberculosis it is the bovine type, which is not likely to infect human adults but may infect children, causing the bone and lymph node tuberculosis in young children. The condition you describe would seem to be a nuisance which should warrant some investigation by the local health board.
Beer Versus Milk
What truth is there in the testimony of an alleged expert before a congressional committee that there is almost as much energy in beer as in good milk? (E. M. D.)
Answer—Approximately the same amount of truth in the assertion as there is energy in beer. A man couldn't drink the prodigious volume of beer (many gallons) he would require to furnish the energy for a light day's work. The catch in the propaganda is that little word ALMOST.
Fumes of Lime
Can you tell me if inhaling the fumes of lime would be of benefit to a person with T. E. A friend thinks this is helping him. (Miss C. K.)
Answer—There is an old theory that persons inhaling or ingesting considerable lime are less likely than others to develop tuberculosis, or that persons who have the disease do better if they get more lime in one way or another. I do not know any more about it.

The Tynmites
By Hal Cochran
WHEN once the Tynies reached outdoors they heard more of the play man's snore. "He sure was tired," said Scouty. "We had best leave him alone."
"He says there's nothing more to see around this place. It seems to me that we'd best move along again and travel on our own."
"I guess you're right," said Windy. "I just wish I had a chance to fly around up in the air again, but, shucks, I have no plane."
"The one he let me use before is gone so it is here," no more. Av, what's the use of wishing, when the wishing's all in vain?"
They sat down on the ground a while. Then Coppy jumped up, with a smile. "We're funny little fellows," he exclaimed. "Here we all sit!"
"Why not start strolling over the land? The road is nice; the weather grand. I feel that I could walk for miles, 'cause I'm not tired a bit."
Then Duncy opened up his hat and snapped, "Say, do you realize that maybe someone else is tired? I want to take a snooze."
"We have no special place in mind to go, where strange things we might find. I think it's best to loaf right here. We've lots of time to lose."
The others, in real teasing tones cried, "Listen to old lazy bones. This time you cannot have your wish. A new spot we will find."
Then up they jumped to start their hike. "Come on," said Scouty. "It you like." It wasn't very long till Duncy trailed along behind.
All of a sudden they all spied a funny little man. Windy cried, "Hello, there, tall, slim fellow. Tell us where are you bound for?"
"Oh, don't mind me," the little man said, "but just keep walking straight ahead. You'll shortly reach a house where there are thrilling things in store."

A Bystander In Washington
BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington — The gentleman from New Jersey, the first of her sex to become chairman of a major congressional committee, is fast proving to her colleagues that she can tilt with the best of them on the floor.
Mrs. Mary Norton, chairman of the important house committee on the District of Columbia and referred to in the capital as the "mayor" of Washington, is no novice in politics. "On the hill" veterans will tell you that the black-haired, flashing-eyed Mrs. Norton plays at politics just like a man. She neither asks nor gives quarter.
She likes to use the time honored words and phrases of the politician whether she is addressing a polite society of women or making a old-fashioned stump speech.
Shouted Down
Mrs. Norton's first appearance before the house in the role of a committee chairman was not particularly auspicious. She found herself a victim of parliamentary maneuvering, loud shouting and other things that sat her down in rather harsh fashion.
Predictions were made at the time that a woman just wasn't capable of weathering the rough and tumble situations which a committee chairman trying to jam a bill through must undergo.
Whether the gentleman from New Jersey heard these predictions or not is a matter of record. But judging from the manner in which she has conducted her subsequent appearances on the floor, something of this nature must have been brought to her attention.
She took her stand on the floor the other day, for example, to clear the calendar of some legislation affecting the District of Columbia. Tom Blanton of Texas, one of the house's hardest hitters in debate put himself in her way to oppose some of the bills.
She Tells Blanton
Blanton, an expert at scotching around the rules to get time to talk, succeeded in getting the floor for a whole hour at one time. He proceeded to talk about almost everything but District legislation.
There was nothing Mrs. Norton could do but register impatience and disgust at Blanton's tactics. Her anger increased with each minute. Finally, she arose and shot at him: "Does the gentleman from Texas think that he is doing an honest day's work?"
Blanton countered with some remark, and she blazed out again: "Well, you're not fair with our committee."

Just Folks
By Elgar A. Guest
THE PATIENT BOOKS
Books on the shelves stand patient and serene. Like old, true friends who for my call await. Then gladly come full-banded to the gate. Though long neglected of their lord I've been. And though each other we have seldom seen, They have not turned away from me in hate. Nor do they answer that I cry too late. They cannot bridge the years which lie between.
Just as old friends in trouble's hour return, All gentle, tender, glad of use to be, Eager at once my pressing need to learn, So from the shelves old books come down to me. Happy to serve me every page appears, Though I have seemed ungrateful through the years.

"HELL DIVERS" IS SPECTACLE OF AIR

Wallace Beery and Clark Gable Play Parts in Thrill Picture

"Hell Divers," mighty romance of aviation in the navy, with Wallace Beery and Clark Gable co-starring and a supporting cast which includes such prominent players as Conrad Nagel, Dorothy Jordan, Marjorie Ransome and Marie Prevost, is providing thrills at the Elite Theatre, today and Sunday.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer drama, filmed with the cooperation of the navy at the Panama maneuvers, aboard the airplane carrier Saratoga, and at North Island, has in it practically every air thrill the service achieves in its annual training.

One sees planes hurt themselves downward, two miles in less than half a minute. One sees hundreds of planes in the air, diving through clouds in formation.

Sensational Crashes

There are sensational crashes, a heroic rescue, salvos fired from great battleships—the whole awe-inspiring pageant of a great navy in full action. Amid this is a romance with the lure of the tropics, with love, sacrifice, struggle and duty.

DOROTHY MACKAIL IN "LOVE AFFAIR" LEAD

Dorothy Mackail plays the leading role in "Love Affair," Columbia picture coming to the Appleton Theatre on Wed. and Thurs. of next week.

Written by Ursula Parrott, author of such scintillating film successes as "Divorce" and "Strangers May Kiss," "Love Affair" presents the popular player as a typical Parrott heroine, gay, modern, sparkling and sophisticated. This is in marked contrast to Miss Mackail's previous screen role—the harassed ill-fated wife from justice of "Safe in Hell."

Miss Mackail's leading man is Humphrey Bogart, recruited from the stage. He withdrew from the cast of John Van Druten's "After All" in which he was appearing with the English star, Helen Hayes, to play with Miss Mackail. Bogart has had previous screen experience. He played in "A Devil With Women" and "Up The River" last season. Dissatisfied with his roles made him retire from the screen and return to the stage. His enthusiasm for the "Love Affair" part persuaded him to try the screen again.

An unusually imposing cast includes Jack Kennedy, Astrid Allwyn, Bradley Page, Hale Hamilton and Harold Minjar.

ROMANCE, ACTION IN FILM, "PANAMA FLO"

"Panama Flo," a story of intrigue and lost love in tropical Panama and the jungles of South America, will be the feature attraction at the Elite Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday as Helen Twelvetrees' latest starring production for RKO-Pathé, and for entertainment with a punch this one will be hard to beat.

Here is a melodrama filled with romance, action and tense situations which not only make for genuine audience enjoyment but also provide Helen Twelvetrees with one of the finest emotional roles of her screen career.

Its producers have spared nothing to give the photoplay everything required for depicting the colorful locale.

In support of the star, RKO-Pathé has provided a sterling supporting cast which consists of Robert Armstrong, Charles Bickford, Paul Hurst, Maude Eburne, Marjorie Peterson and Reina Velaz.

CAROLE LOMBARD IS FEATURED IN FILM

The widely read and warmly discussed Rupert Hughes' novel, "No One Man," which also ran as a serial in magazine form, reaches the Elite Theatre screen next Thursday and Friday.

It is a new kind of story done in the modern manner, relating the loves of a typical daughter of today, "Nep," who endeavors to solve the matrimonial problem. Settings, chiefly those of New York City and Palm Beach, are lavish.

Carole Lombard, Ricardo Cortez, Paul Lukas, Juliette Compton, Arthur Plerson, Frances Moffett, George Barbier and Marjorie Jackson are the cast leaders. The direction is by Lloyd Corrigan.

This is Miss Carole's first production in several months, following her marriage to William Powell.

"WOMAN IN ROOM 13" TO PLAY AT THEATRE

At midnight rendezvous, in the room of an exclusive hotel, where the walls have ears, and eyes, a shot in the dark, and then the problem: Who was the "Woman in Room 13?"

Such is the powerfully dramatic theme of the new Fox film starring Elissa Landi, and playing at the Fox Theatre Saturday May, 28th. Although not a mystery play this picture includes enough of the unexpected to keep one guessing until the climax, and its quick, rapid action permits no time to drag.

The plot, the aftermath of one of America's most popular topics of conversation, divorce, centers around the dramatic life of a spirited young divorcee who risks all in search of happiness, and determines to find it through a second marriage. How he succeeds, and her husband falls victim to his own plans for revenge are revealed in the stirring climax of this strikingly modern picture.

Miss Landi is supported by three leading men, Ralph Bellamy, Neil Hamilton, and Gilbert Roland, while Merna Loy adds feminine beauty, and talent in a role admirably befitting her type of histrionics.

The "Woman in Room 13" offers the public the ultimate in modern drama, and its cast of five leading stars assures one of a better than average evening's entertainment. Then too, one may see the midnight preview of Sunday's attraction, Paramount's rollicking comedy "Reserved for the Ladies," all for the same admission price.

PICTURE ABOUNDS IN COMEDY SCENES

At last! At last! A picture has been "Reserved for the Ladies," that is unless they wish to let the men in on it too, and why shouldn't they? It's a source of fun for all.

This raucous comedy coming to the Fox Theatre in Saturday's midnight show and showing Sunday May 29th, stars Leslie Howard, that prominent English actor who is fast capturing the hearts and fancies of the American public. The story deals with the amusing antics of a Royal head waiter in his quest for the hand of a beautiful young heiress. In fact so earnest is his desire to attract the young woman, that he follows her to a famous Swiss resort where he poses as a prince.

The cast of "Reserved for the Ladies" offers a variety of new faces to the screen fans, including the beautiful young actress, Elizabeth Allen, Mr. Howard's new leading lady. Further support is given by alluring Benita Nune as the "Countess," and George Grossmith as the "King."

"Reserved for the Ladies" is refreshingly new, with a new cast—a picture that drives the blues away!

450 WEED SEEDS IN EACH POUND OF OATS

Ames, Iowa.—(AP)—It is not uncommon, says an Iowa State college plant pathologist, to find 450 weed seeds in each pound of seed oats.

This means 43,200 weeds an acre, if conditions are favorable, or one noxious plant to nearly one square foot.

Five live weed seeds per gram of alfalfa seed, or 2,250 per pound may result in 33,750 weeds to an acre.

So R. H. Porter, the pathologist, concludes that farmers should test seed for purity and viability and that, since it costs no more to plant good seed than poor, farmers should avoid this possibility of low production.

So crowded was the number of cases in London courts that 550 had to be carried over to the next term.

EXPOSE NIGHT LIFE IN MOTION PICTURE

"Night World" Is to Be Shown Two Days at Appleton Theatre

What goes on behind the gay music and carefree festivity of Broadway's night clubs? What takes place behind the silken drapes and softened lights?

Theatregoers will find the dramatic answer in "Night World," Universal's swift moving picture of romance and nocturnal adventure on Broadway which opens an engagement next Fri. and Sat. at the Appleton Theatre. Two New York writers, Allen Rivkin and P. J. Wolfson, who wrote "Bodies Are Dust," wrote this story and a New York director, Robert Henley, put it on the screen.

The absorbing story is that of a single night's happenings in a crowded supper club, which involve a disillusioned young millionaire, seeking forgetfulness. A sympathetic chorus girl, knowing his story, attempts to comfort him, and in so doing discovers that love is the cure. However, at this point, both become enmeshed in a series of exciting situations resulting from the underworld activities of the proprietor and his scheming mate. Things move fast, bringing the lovers to what appears to be a desperate impasse, and here comes the surprise which is said to make "Night World" one of the most thrilling pictures displayed for a long time in Appleton.

Lew Ayres, the accomplished screen actor who has won well-merited fame, is starred in "Night World," with Mae Clarke in the leading role of the night club entertainer. Boris Karloff, of "Frankenstein," is seen in an important part, and Dorothy Revier, Russell Hopton, Dorothy Peterson, Clarence Muse, Bert Roach, Hilda Hopper, Florence Lake, and other film favorites round out the large cast.

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE "GEMINI"

If May 30th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:10 a. m. to 10 a. m., from noon to 1:15 p. m., and from 7:30 p. m. to 8:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 7:45 a. m., and from 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m.

An inundation of unexpected demands upon your strength and time on May 30th will hinder the progress of your usual tasks and upset scheduled plans for the week. Mrs. Grundy will be unusually busy slaying victims amongst the young married set; those who have been playing off fire are in for some bad burns, unless more caution is displayed.

The child born on this May 30th will be a rather weak-willed, submissive little being, and will greatly reflect both parental and school influences during later life. It will be refined and quiet, and will not choose rowdy companions. Whether an indifferent or a prize scholar will depend a great deal upon its teachers—it will need to be drawn out and encouraged.

Born on May 30th you are a close-tongued, cautious, and an ultra conservative being. You have the emotional person's wisdom of silence and lack of display. Your quiet obstinacy is difficult to combat, as you go your own way oblivious of the would-be desires of others. Your honesty and integrity are recognized by one and all, but your nature seems untouched by the warm fires of love.

of personal magnetism. The world may expect more justice than mercy from those of your type.

You have a great capacity for hard work, and the ability to carry out dreary forms of drudgery without complaint. You would give your last ounce of strength rather than quit a thing begun or accept defeat. You are frank and fearless, but are not diplomatic. You have an average type human mind, and you know how to use it to attain what you want out of life. You could never be original, but you are capable of doing very excellent work in some established field.

There is some morbidity in your nature, and you allow yourself to brood over disappointments and to harbour feelings of resentment. You never forget or forgive a vital

"THE WET PARADE" TO BE SHOWN HERE

Picturization of Lewis' Novel to Play at Fox Theatre Next Week

Ever so often a drama is written which has a double aim; that of appealing to ones educational as well as dramatic mind. It is this double appeal which one finds in "The Wet Parade," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production showing at the Fox Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 29th to June 1st.

Starring Walter Huston and Dorothy Jordan, this picture gives one a panoramic view of the liquor situation by covering the pre-war life with that of the present day in a broad, unbiased manner. It does not attempt to take sides, but simply presents, in an amazing romance, the story of our own times—the great events, the thrilling days we are living through.

Spectacular in detail and characterization the story starts off with the alcoholic tragedy of an old southern aristocrat in the pre-war days, and then shifts to the modern generation in which son and daughter find themselves the center of a vicious vortex of law-breaking, fast life, and rampant violation of the liquor law. Society drinking haunts are contrasted with the arm hidden cellars where bootleggers hide their stills, and social and criminal angles of the problem are worked into a tale of compelling and powerful proportions.

Absolutely supporting Miss Jordan and Mr. Huston in the cast are such notables as Lewis Stone, Neil Hamilton, Myrna Loy, Joan Marsh, and Jimmy Durante. Jimmy "Snozzle" Durante, needless to say, provides plenty of rollicking humor to offset the more sincere trend of the picture, and helps give "The Wet Parade" an entertaining as well as educational value.

BROWN PLAYS PART OF "TENDERFOOT"

King of Comedians Plays Role as Texas Rancher in New York

Joe E. Brown, affectionately regarded as the current king of comedians, follows up his "Fireman, Save My Child" success with "The Tenderfoot," a First National picture coming to the Appleton theatre with the midnite show tonic for 3 days.

In his latest, wide-mouthed Joe portrays a Texas rancher who comes to New York with the last of his money, which he intends to invest profitably so he can lift the mortgage on his ranch. Armed with his money and his six-shooters, Joe becomes involved with a theatrical producer, falls in love, buys a show which is a failure, miraculously and unwittingly turns the show into a howling success gets mixed up with lawyers and ladies, eventually overcoming all obstacles, lifting the mortgage and winning the gal.

In "The Tenderfoot," Joe is supported by an especially selected cast with Ginger Rogers in the feminine lead. Lew Cody and Robert Griggs appear as theatrical producers. Vivian Oakland is seen as a temperamental star. Others in the exceptional and large cast are Wilfred Lucas, Spencer Charters, Ralph Ince, Madison, Marion Byron, Harry Seymour, Jill Dennett and Alan Lane.

SMUGGLERS BUSY ON GERMAN-DUTCH BORDER

Amsterdam.—(AP)—Smuggling across the Dutch frontier from Germany has increased of late at an alarming rate.

In one year 15,000 smugglers have been arrested and 1,300 bicycles and 123 motor lorries seized. In one district alone four million cigarettes, 77,000 pounds of coffee, 74,000 pounds of grain, 275,000 pounds of potatoes and 80,000 pounds of sugar were confiscated.

In one case smugglers seeking to escape the frontier guards overturned fifteen beehives, releasing angry bees between themselves and the officers, several of whom were badly stung.

LEGATES BACK FROM CONVENTION

Eight New London Women at P. T. A. Gathering at Wisconsin Rapids

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Fully convinced of the place that the Parent-Teachers association may have in affairs of the community and school, delegates returned yesterday from the state convention. Delegates included eight New London women. They were Mrs. Gilbert Fostad, Mrs. W. G. Caley, Mrs. Louis Wagner, Mrs. A. Wells, Mrs. Edward Streng, Mrs. E. W. Wendlandt, Mrs. William Dent and Mrs. John Seering. All phases of work were considered in the three day conference and a number of educators stressed the powers of the association, its needs and its problems. Special stress was laid upon continuing extra curricular work during the financial depression, many of the speakers maintaining that they would rather discontinue some of the standard subjects than to relinquish their efforts in such subjects as physical education, music, art, playground work and dramatics.

Miss Eusebia Kohler, superintendent of Sherwood school and a former New London resident and teacher, was one of the principal speakers. Miss Kohler spoke of the work done by the association in Milwaukee and particularly in the Shorewood schools and pointed out what influence it has had. She stated that both teachers and parents have come to depend upon the organization as a clearing house for problems and ideas.

Conferences of various sorts were held, among which was one conducted for presidents of organizations. This was presided over by the state president, Mrs. May Hubbard, Milwaukee. Questions were presented informally and directions given regarding the building of programs, how to secure necessary information of all kinds.

French Vanilla and Fresh Strawberry

It is the delightful smoothness made possible by the Gridley "Fast Frozen" process that has caused so many people to prefer Gridley's.

Or it may be the delightful combinations of true, full flavors which Gridley has a "knack" of creating. . . . But whatever the reason . . . the fact remains that you will like Gridley's Ice Cream best. Try the Gridley "Special" this week. It's delicious.

A layer of French Vanilla, flavored with ground vanilla beans . . . and a second layer of that popular favorite . . . Fresh Strawberry . . . "Fast Frozen", of course, for finer flavor.

GREEN BAY NINE LOOP LEADERS, MEET KAWS NEXT

Appear at Kaukauna Ball Park for League Tilt Sunday Afternoon

Kaukauna—Fans here will have their first opportunity to see the Green Bay baseball club, which is setting the pace in the Fox river valley league, in action against the Kaukauna champions, when the two teams mix in a league fracas at the Kaukauna ball park Sunday afternoon. Manager Marty Lamers of the Kaws has been working his players hard all week in preparation for the fray, which is the feature game of the league schedule Sunday.

The Kaws have annexed but one victory while the Green Bay club has been setting down league teams in succession behind the steady hurling of Petek, former Clintonville hurler. Two errors on the part of the Wisconsin Rapids ball team allowed the Kaws a victory at the Rapids city last Sunday, while Green Bay took Appleton into camp 4 to 3. Petek pitched seven perfect innings of baseball against the Appleton team.

Richard "Red" Smith who totes a mean warclub in any league, may be with the Kaws in Sunday's fray. If suitable terms can be arranged, if Smith performs with the squad he will court around the first sack which has been filled by Hillman of Appleton.

Meet Appleton Monday

On Monday the Kaws will meet Appleton at the local park. With the prospect of two strong teams to battle over the weekend Manager Lamers will have no trouble with his pitching staff. "Leaky" Fortin, who held the heavy sluggers of Wisconsin Rapids to but four hits last Sunday, will start on the mound Sunday, and should go the route. Fullinger, reserve hurler, who has had little chance to show his wares this season, will be Lamers' choice for Monday's fracas.

Included in the Kaw lineup will be R. Smith or Hillman on first base; Lamers on second; Zeland on shortstop; and Johnny Phillips on the third base. Fortin will be on the mound with Wenzel receiving. In the outfield Les Smith will cavort in left field; Vils in center field; and Van Drasek in right field.

SCOUTS TO MARCH IN MEMORIAL DAY PARADE

Kaukauna—All scouts of troop 27 will march in the Memorial Day parade, according to Henry H. Griest, scoutmaster. Scouts will assemble at Legion hall on Oak-st at 10 o'clock Monday morning. Scouts also are urged to attend the meeting in St. Mary Annex Monday evening, as final instructions for the Camp O'Ral being held at Clintonville next week will be handed out. Knights of Columbus are furnishing transportation of the scouts to Clintonville.

CONFER WITH PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

Kaukauna—Mayor B. W. Fargo and Herbert P. Weckwerth, superintendent of the Kaukauna electrical and water departments, were in Madison Friday conferring with members of the Wisconsin Public Service commission. Discussion of the proposed reduction of utility rates, which is being requested by the public service commission, took place.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

MISCOUNTING TRUMPS

A common fault at the Bridge table is inability to count up to thirteen, and Dummy and both opponents usually give a half derisive and half pitying smile at the Declarer who miscounts the trump suit, particularly. It is not wise, however, to always assume that because the Declarer has left a trump in an opposing hand that he has failed to count up to thirteen. Even though he permits it to win a trick that might otherwise have been won with a high card in his hand or the Dummy, he may only be concealing a Machiavellian plot. We were warned in our school days to watch the Greeks most closely when they came bearing gifts.

Today's hand is an illustration of the proferring of a Grecian gift, the acceptance of which permitted the Declarer to make his contract, which was otherwise as unattainable as the moon itself. A "forgotten trump" in the hand of South loomed large for a moment, but it lost its significance when the Declarer scored up four-odd for game and rubber.

ARGUED IN VAIN

Fort Worth, Tex.—If Joe Brady ever gets in a jam again, he won't attempt to argue his own case in court. Up for robbery, Brady spurned the services of a lawyer, and conducted his own examination of witnesses. Despite Brady's clever manipulation of his defense, he received a 35-year sentence from a jury in Criminal District Court.

ASK DEPARTMENT TO EXHIBIT AT SHOW

An invitation to the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture to operate a booth at the annual spring show on June 18 and 19 at Armory G has been extended by the Flower and Garden division of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, according to Harvey A. Schlutz, division chairman.

Chapter 25

SCORCHING ANGER

"I SUPPOSE you're going to the Old Man's to dinner?" George said.

"Yes... Did you come into the apartment just now and--and go out again?" Jenny asked.

"Two seemed to be company--" "How dare you, George!" and then--"Oh, we can't be quarrelling! It's too fantastic, when he has been counting the hours till he sees you again! You must be tired or very unhappy to let yourself speak like this."

Jenny's face was quivering and now George's, too broke up and twisted her smile into a pathetic thing.

"Yes, I'm sorry. Yes, I'm tired and I'm unhappy, too. Don't hate me, honey, not anyway until we've talked this business out. Run along now, and stand up to the old devil all you can, he seems to like it. Oh, and, Jenny, if you should meet Garth Aveney at Rochester Gate--you remember the man I mean--take most deadly care not to breathe a word about Ed and me. You'll probably find out why for yourself."

Jenny went on down the stairs and into the taxi which Gill had summoned for her and as she went she said to herself over and over again--"George's tired and unhappy, people don't know what they're saying when they are very tired and unhappy."

The taxi lurched along to the tune of it. "People don't know what they're saying--" But they ought to know! George ought to know that there were things one simply never, never allowed oneself to imagine! Jenny's hot, sudden anger scorched her again.

The anger did not last. Little Miss Georgina had learnt many useful lessons with grandfather. It never was wise, she had learnt to be angry because others did things that, oneself, one would never do. People were different. Jenny was Jenny; George was George. Jenny's sore mind went back to the night when George had said--"At a pinch I could say that it was you Eddie married not me." Something coarse grained in the nature that planned the telling of such a lie!

Perhaps, but--Jenny's curved hand slipped between two folds of frothy silver-green--there was so much else to remember. George gave and gave and never had enough of giving; when she chose a silver frock for a little cousin, she did it royally, with a laugh and a kiss.

She woke up to the fact that the taxi had stopped and she hurried out. The high, dark-fronted house seemed familiar to her after George's intimate chatter about the old man who ruled it; but Jenny was not prepared for the beauty of the hall. George had said nothing about the gleaming floors and the softly hanging Eastern silks and the silvered lights. As Jenny went under them in the wake of a grave butler, she felt as though she were a swan, swimming on a silver lake.

Perhaps she looked like one as she entered the big, glittering room at the end of the hall, for her host stared at her through suddenly narrowed eyes, faintly smiling, and seemed to forget that he had apologies to make, and explanations.

Jenny's heart tumbled suddenly, stopped, then went on.

"Mr. Matching isn't here yet?" she asked.

Garth Aveney collected himself. "I'm sorry, I should have told you at once--he's not well enough to dine with us. Later on, if it wouldn't bore you, he would very much like to see you upstairs."

"I didn't know that he was ill," Jenny sat down wearily.

"He isn't ill exactly. But he has had an exhausting trip and he isn't robust. He forgets that he is an old man."

"Perhaps he doesn't feel old, in his heart."

"He's never before heard anybody suggest that he'd got one. 'You'll have a cocktail!'"

Jenny shook her head, then remembered that George had told her it was babyish, nowadays, to refuse, and took a little ice-cold glass from the silver tray a footman held before her.

"Don't drink it," said Aveney quietly, as the man left the room. "You'll dislike it. Besides, it's not your po--"

She looked up at him, flushing deeply. No doubt, he was making fun of her, though there was no sign of it in his face. He stood with one shoulder against a high, carved mantel, his slenderness emphasized by the brightly panelled walls behind him. His face was half in shadow, and she remembered that in her dreams of him, it was always like this that she saw him--with his wide shoulders and slender hands and long, idle hands all clearly cut against the light, but his face hidden in shadow.

"Yes, what is it you want to ask?" "Why did you have yourself announced as 'Miss Revell'?"

Jenny sought in vain for an answer. He bent down and removed the little glass which she was still clutching.

"I shouldn't have thought that you were that sort."

"What sort?" managed Jenny.

"The sort that insists on being modern--though--married. The Braggart Deering type. Or is it some league that makes you take a pledge never to use your husband's name? Anyway, it's a movement. And I shouldn't have thought that you would belong to it."

"I don't," said Jenny.

"Then why--?"

"I forgot. I mean, I forgot that I am supposed to be 'Mrs. Townsend.' It is a lucky chance that Mr. Matching isn't here. But the explanation did not appear to satisfy him. He repeated 'supposed to be' and laughed.

A door in the paneling opened. A footman stood rigidly by it, waiting. Garth Aveney shrugged and turned.

"Shall we dine?"

Her mind raced as she preceded him into the smaller room, on the other side of the bright panels and the silent servants. Why had he shrugged like that, as though he despised her? Surely he could not think that it was she who had married Eddie? Surely he must have guessed, when his uncle ordered him to play host to 'Mrs. Townsend,' exactly what had happened. He must have assumed that George, whom he knew to be in love with Eddie (he ought to thank his stars for you!), had covered her marriage by making use of her cousin's identical name.

Aveney seated himself opposite her and began to talk, easily and brilliantly. All about Mexico, where, apparently, he had been for many years.

"Mexico?" she repeated, catching timely at the name. "Eddie was to have gone there. But I don't believe he will ever be able to go now."

"I'm sincerely sorry to hear it. I was to have met him this week, but I understand he's not allowed to see anyone."

"I don't think he will fly again. I'm afraid not. I didn't know that you wanted to see him."

"You knew, surely, that he was to have returned to Mexico with me? I'm taking a pilot and observer back with me. He didn't tell you?"

She shook her head. No, she had not been told. George, now she came to think of it, had explained very little. Her thoughts went vaguely back to her problems. Suppose she had been mistaken from the first and George had never fully explained to this man, either? She might, after all, have sent him away without saying a word of Eddie.

Then--then it would look as though she, Jenny Revell, were a very sordid type of creature, indeed; a girl who flirted languidly with one man while she was waiting to be married to another. A girl who made a "date" to go motoring with the husband of a day and in the need of her. A girl who would not take her husband's name or--she stared down at her bare hand--or wear his ring.

"You're not eating anything at all," said Aveney.

She chose one of the questions that were milling through her mind and, haltingly, put it.

"Was it--was it your uncle who told you that I was the Georgina Revell who--?"

"Who had married Townsend?" He mentioned it, certainly, in fact he has been talking quite a lot about you. But I rather fancy that I got the news in the first place from your cousin."

"From George! And you believed her?"

Aveney's jibes lash Jenny to resentment and tears, in the next installment.

RECOVERY SURE TO TAKE PLACE, BABSON HOLDS

We Still Have Physical Assets and Our Attitude Has Changed, He Says

BY ROGER BABSON
Babson Park, Mass.—It is well at times like these to count our blessings and to discount our fears. The reason so many people are panicky about the present and so fearful of the future is that they are confusing "real" wealth with that fictitious kind of wealth which is measured in price quotations of securities, commodities, and credits. Actually this depression has caused no loss of real wealth. We still have 123,000,000 vigorous, healthy, educated people—our greatest asset. We still have 522,000,000 acres of good farm land, capable of producing annually 800,000,000 bushels of wheat, 2,000,000,000 bushels of corn, 16,500,000 bales of cotton, and other crops and vegetables sufficient to feed the entire population and leave a surplus for other nations.

We have nearly half a billion acres of pasture lands, capable of feeding livestock for an annual production of 650,000,000 pounds of beef and 637,000,000 pounds of mutton. We have forests and lumber mills capable of producing 26,500,000 M board feet of lumber a year. There is coal enough in the United States to last six thousand years; iron ore reserves of 7,000,000,000 tons; and steel mills with an annual capacity of 56,000,000 tons. We are producing annually 18,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline, and 800,000,000 barrels of crude oil. A vast system of public utilities furnishes households and industries with 96,000,000,000 kw. hours of electricity and 120,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas annually. These things and a host of other valuable assets are all here. They are tangible wealth which, when put to normal use, can offer employment, food, shelter, clothing, and some luxuries for all.

Abuse Of Credit
If America were poor in natural resources, backward in industrial development, devastated by war or pestilence, then the pessimists might have cause for despair of the future. It is not. Our national wealth exceeds $320,000,000,000; our manufacturing industry does a business of over $70,000,000,000 a year; our retail business exceeds $50,000,000,000 a year. Our people have $27,000,000,000 deposited in savings banks, and more than $100,000,000 in life insurance. The $5,000,000,000 currency in circulation is backed by a wider margin of gold reserve than that of any country on earth. We have developed mass production to a point unrivaled in any land. "Why then," I am asked, "should 7,000,000 people be out of employment and many more on part time? Why should our incomes and purchasing power be so greatly reduced; why are many factories shut down; why are corporations, railroads, cities, and towns unable to borrow money?"

The trouble is not with our physical resources or our scientific development. The main trouble arose from the abuse, instead of the proper use, of credit. Through speculation in securities, through mortgaging our future incomes, through reckless foreign loans, through piling up debts far beyond our near-term capacity to pay, we brought about an unhealthy expansion of credit from 1926 to 1929. The drastic liquidation of the past two years has been correcting this situation; and in spite of the 80 per cent decline in security prices, the 35 per cent decline in commodity prices, the curtailment of incomes, the passing of dividends, in actuality no real wealth has been destroyed. We have been liquidating those credit excesses for the past two and a half years. This process of liquidation was drastic and violent, thus throwing the whole machinery of production, prices, and purchasing power out of gear.

Common-Sense Return
Credit is the basis of all business. Confidence, in turn, is the basis of all credit; and character is the basis of all confidence. Hence, the key-stone to the whole economic structure is the character of our people. From the highest officials and business leaders to the humblest of wage workers, character is the nation's greatest asset, far surpassing all of the vast physical and material resource which I have enumerated. This depression was the reaction from the flagrant abuse of credit, which in turn destroyed confidence, smashed prices, curtailed purchasing power, reduced production, and created unemployment. However, during the depression the majority of people have again come to a common-sense view of the real fundamentals of living, and are again developing the elements of character which will bring back confidence and credit. Great as the distress and suffering is, there apparently was no other way by which all of us could learn the lesson that real prosperity must be based on hard work, thrift, honesty, and the other old-fashioned virtues which were temporarily discarded in the speculative hey-day of 1928 and 1929.

We are again building up in our appreciation of the common-sense attitude toward life. Realizing that we can no longer get something for nothing, everybody will attack the task of reconstruction in the right spirit. Hence, the depression has destroyed none of our physical assets and in the end will be found to have improved our spiritual assets.

General business as measured by the Babsonchart is now 35 per cent below the normal X-Y Line, compared with 38 per cent a month ago, even with adjustments for usual seasonal movements.

Accumulating Auto Mart Is "Plus Sign" For Business

Executive Vice President The Union Trust Company, Cleveland, Ohio

INDICATIONS of an accumulating market for motor vehicles is seen in the report of 1931 registrations compiled from state sources by the United States Bureau of Public Roads. Total motor vehicles registered in the United States last year numbered 25,514,103, a 2.8 per cent decrease from the 26,545,281 registered in 1930.

Compared with the small loss in registrations, production in 1931 dropped 31 per cent as against the previous year, indicating the disposition of car owners, in unsettled times, arbitrarily to lengthen the useful life of their vehicles. It probably follows that they will pyramid their replacement purchases when conditions improve.

It is this evident exhaustion of usable mileage in cars in operation which is the basis for the determined drive which large manufacturers of low priced cars are making for sales this year.

The statistics gathered by the Bureau of Roads show also what an important factor the automotive business has become in revenue raising. Total registration and license fees collected were $344,337,654. This vast sum was devoted almost entirely to work on the roads of the country and accounted for much employment.

In the distribution $200,733,785 was spent on state highways, $70,043,625 on local roads, $42,574,565 went into payments on road bonds and $19,688,694 was spent for collection and administration. But $11,549,697 went for purposes other than road work.

several characteristics which our hardy ancestors possessed and by which they built up this great nation. Hence, instead of being discouraged about the future I am encouraged for two powerful reasons. First, the fundamental physical assets of this country—farm lands, minerals, forests, buildings, factories, machinery, power lines, roads, railroads, and other resources—remain unimpaired. They are still here in excellent condition ready to use for economic reconstruction. Second, hard times are building up in us an appreciation of the common-sense attitude toward life. Realizing that we can no longer get something for nothing, everybody will attack the task of reconstruction in the right spirit. Hence, the depression has destroyed none of our physical assets and in the end will be found to have improved our spiritual assets.

MANUFACTURED ICE IS PURER, LASTS LONGER, IS CLAIM

Constant Supply of Ice Should Be Kept in Refrigerator, Says Makers

Did you know that as long as there is ice in your refrigerator, there is a constantly circulating stream of cold air which preserves the perishable foods you keep there for later use? The current of cold air passes from the compartment below the ice around and up through the other compartments. Thus, with ice refrigeration, you are assured of proper temperatures at which to keep different foods.

Manufactured ice, as provided for you by the Lutz Ice Company, 306 N. Superior-st., has been shown to be the most valuable type of ice for refrigeration. Tests show that it lasts longer than other kinds of ice. Its purity is unquestioned, for Lutz manufactured ice is purer than the water you drink. Thus, the ice served you regularly by Lutz, is the ideal product with which to preserve foods. Its economy, of course, is increased with the finer construction of modern refrigerators, available, at low cost in many stores throughout the city.

Manufacture Ice Cubes
The purity of Lutz manufactured ice makes it ideal to serve chilled in cooling drinks. Where ice cubes are preferred, however, the Lutz company can arrange to provide you with standard-sized cubes, manufactured in the same way as the large blocks of ice which you use in your refrigerators and cut with a scoring machine. This convenience costs but little. Arrangements are also being made to provide crushed ice for Lutz customers.

Experts agree that ice should not be wrapped. The saving is trivial—if any. Moreover, wrapped ice cannot absorb heat or dissolve food odors. For the same reason, it is best not to put food in the ice compartment. Since the best refrigeration is obtained in the refrigerator, it is best not to place food so that the air current will be impeded or cut off. For real economy of efficient refrigeration and economy, moreover, it is best not to permit the ice supply to get below one half the capacity of the ice compartment.

More and more, thinking people are recognizing the real value of ice refrigeration and the tremendous aid it is to good housekeeping and pure, fresh foods, unrobbed of their moisture. A phone call to the Lutz Ice Company—number 2—will bring Lutz Ice service at any interval you choose. The cost is unusually low.

MATURITY DATES ARE IMPORTANT IN STUDYING BONDS

Abnormally High Return on Matured Issues Is Sign of Danger

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press
New York—In any study of the market action of a corporation's bonds for a line on the recuperative possibilities of the stock the dates when the various obligations mature are of vital importance. An abnormally high return on a bond soon to mature is a sign of greater danger than the same return would be on one of distant maturity, security being equal in both cases.

This is aside from the normal market habit of appraising short term securities according as money is plentiful or is scarce. In the present market, considerations of that kind do not count. The only question asked is whether under depression conditions the principal can be met when due and interest paid regularly meanwhile.

Look with suspicion then on weakness in a bond falling due within a year or two. The market may overestimate the risk but the theory under which we are working is that the market is the best guide we have or at least that when the market indications are favorable the stocks of the companies concerned should be given the preference from both speculative and investment standpoints.

Incidentally, it is a reason for confidence when a corporation has no near maturities to meet. This is particularly true in the railway field. Dividends may be reduced or omitted altogether and the company remain solvent if funded indebtedness can be cared for and obviously it is easier at present to provide for interest payments on bonds already outstanding than to refinance by new offerings. There are times when in periods of industrial stability and declining interest rates when the opportunity of refinancing is distinctly advantageous. Then bonds may be replaced with issues carrying lower coupon rates but that is far from the case now. The conclusion is that if in this market a corporate bond of nearly maturity sells on a relatively low yield basis that corporation is in strong financial position and its stock deserves consideration in any long pull investment plan.
